The Canadian Cancer Society is a national community based organization of volunteers, whose mission is to eradicate cancer and enhance the quality of life of people living with cancer.

To achieve our mission we fund research on all types of cancer. Our organization provides the public with comprehensive information about cancer and risk reduction. We advocate for healthy public policy, and we offer supportive care services to cancer patients, family members and friends. Volunteers and staff at the Canadian Cancer Society support these efforts with funds that are raised in communities across Canada.

How the community can help?

At the Canadian Cancer society volunteers help out in various areas. Volunteer positions vary in time commitment. If you are looking to give back to the community and to get involved with the Canadian Cancer Society here are just few volunteer opportunities available:

Join our annual springtime tradition. Support our annual Daffodil Days campaign, which takes place March 22 – 27.
